Assisted Suicide: The Liberal, Humanist Case Against ...

The Liberal, Humanist Case Against Legalization is a powerful work coming as it does when the question of assisted suicide is being hotly debated. Labour peer Lord Falconer takes his cue from the Abortion Act in tabling a private members bill calling for legislation on 'assisted dying' and though the bill is unlikely to pass into law, the bill is increasingly gaining support.

Assisted Suicide: The Liberal, Humanist Case Against ...

In chapter 3, he advances the thesis that one of the roots of the legalisation movement can be found in a suspicion of medical technology. And this means that the veneer of liberal humanism that defenders of legalisation of assisted dying display is only a veneer; they are, in fact, "enemies of scientific progress and rationality" (p 64).
