There are many reasons that women (and men) do not or cannot leave prostitution. In a 1998 survey of 475 women who were involved in prostitution, ninety-two percent of them said they wanted to leave prostitution but couldn't because they lack basic human services such as a home, job training, health care, counseling and treatment for drug or alcohol addiction. 1 Another reason a prostituted woman might not leave prostitution is that she may be afraid of what her pimp will do to her and ...

Forced Prostitution: Leaving prostitution | WomensLaw.org

A life of prostitution is a choice for some and an obligation for others. Prostitution has been found to largely work out for people who willingly and voluntarily go into it, but for those who are forced into it or would rather not be doing it, it is known to leave deep emotional, mental, physical and circumstantial scars.
